1: Potions & Ingredients

Alchemy is the art of mixing magical and mundane ingredients together into magical potions, concoctions and other wondrous items. In order to perform alchemy, the player characters must have a set of Alchemy Gear (which includes the all-important cauldron) and be able to cast the Potion Mixing Spell.

Into the cauldron, Players then add their chosen ingredients, they must then leave the potion to brew (preferably over a nice warm fire), before completing the process by casting the Potion Mixing Spell which, unlike any other spells, is always performed with a d20 dice.

A number of possible potions are given both in the player handbook, and in the list below (with more information). Each potion has associated with it a number of essential ingredients, a brewing time, the mixing difficulty and the number of doses that a successful mixing produces.

If the ingredients they have chosen match the key ingredients of one of the potions in the list below, and if the potion was left to brew for the correct amount of time, then compare this 'casting check' with the stated difficulty of the potion. If it exceeds the difficulty, then the ingredients are consumed, and a number of samples of the potion are produced, equal to the Dose statistic.

Failed Mixings

If the first mixing check fails, you may elect to ask the alchemist in question to perform the alchemy check again. If the second check also fails, or if you decide to omit this rule, then the ingredients are consumed, and nothing happens: the fluid in the potion turns into a useless black sludge, or evaporates completely.

If, however, the second check completes successfully, then the alchemist produces a Flawed batch of the chosen potion. A flawed batch has the same primary effect as the original potion, but has a Side Effect, which is presented at the bottom of the entry for each potion in the GM guide, but not in the Player Handbook. Some side effects are applied immediately upon mixing, and others are applied when the potion is used.

Modifying Potions

The 'essential ingredients' of a potion are those that one might find in a textbook. They are the safe, reproducible way to produce the stated effects. However, magic is a fickle thing, and the aspiring Potions Master should know that an extra sprinkle of Eye of Newt here, and a dash of Lemon Juice there can drastically change the effects of a potion.

After adding the essential ingredients, each potion can then be modified by adding some optional ingredients. These optional ingredients can boost the effectiveness of the potion mixing by an amount specified in the list below. For instance, Baruffio's Brain Elixir increases Intelligence by 2, but can be fortified by the addition of Ginger (+100%), Griffin Claw (+75%) or an Owl Feather (+25%). The addition of Ginger, therefore, would increase the power of the elixir to +4 Intelligence, whilst Griffin claw would be a +3 bonus (rounding down).

Note that when multiple optional ingredients are added, the bonuses do not simply add, they compound each other, meaning you must multiply them together. A mixture of the Brain Elixir with both Ginger and Griffin Claw would have a magnitude of $2 \times 100\% \times 75\% = 2 \times 2 \times 1.75 = 7$. This is higher than the +5 we would have calculated if we had simply added the bonuses to 175%.

Each optional ingredient also has associated with it an additional DV - making the potion harder to mix. If an incorrect ingredient is added, then it increases the DV by 5, but has no additional effects, unless the GM deems it to be a particularly heinous ingredient (adding Basilisk Venom to a healing potion, for example).

The additional ingredients are not listed in the player version of the potion list, as they are (nominally) a secret. They may learn about the additional effects of individual ingredients through research, or through in-game interactions with herbalists. A trial-and-error approach is also not (entirely) frowned upon!

Purchasing Potions

If a player wants to get all the tasty benefits of potion mixing, but doesn't have the skill to pull it off, then they may simply purchase the potions for the price stated in each potion description. All potions purchased on the general marked are the 'base-level' version with no additional ingredients or effects. If characters wish to purchase more powerful potions, these are only available from rare artisan potioners who make potions to order. The prices of such orders scales with the additional power of the potion.

Part I

Beasts, Beings & Monsters

2: Classifying Beasts

Throughout the centuries that wizardkind has studied the magical and mundane creatures of the world, there have been many different attempts to classify them into some kind of coherent taxonomy. Of these, two different systems have become considered the conventional method of classifying beings of all kinds - though of course the exact boundaries remains a matter of intense debate.

The debate has never been fully settled, confused even further by the introduction of a third system by the Ministry of Magic. These three systems of classification are each useful for determining different aspects of a beast, so are all presented here. These three classification systems are:

- The Mind: The level of sapience and self-awareness possessed by the creature
- The Type: A grouping based on morphological similarities and common points of origin.
- The Threat: A classification based on how dangerous the creature is and the threat it poses to the wizarding world.

Minds

The MIND possessed by a being determines how they think, behave and perceive the world.

Sapient

SAPIENTS are those creatures with consciousness, and intrinsic awareness of the self. Alongside this (usually) comes intelligence, language and society. All HUMANOIDS are considered SAPIENTS, though not all SAPIENTS are HUMANOIDS.

For political reasons, the word BEINGS is often used to describe SAPIENT creatures, with BEASTS reserved for Non-SAPIENT creatures. However this is considered a very politically charged term, and SAPIENTS such as Centaurs and the Merpeople object to sharing this category with, for example, the hags, and hence are often classified as beasts, despite their evidently sapient nature.

SAPIENT creatures are often able to use magic, and are capable of adapting and formulating complex tactics and plans. When controlling a SAPIENT creature and deciding how they would act, the GM should bear this in mind, and allow them to strategise, coordinate and use the environment and items within it to their advantage.

Non-sapient

NON-SAPIENT creatures are those which, whilst possessing a (mostly) recognisable brain, containing recognisable thoughts, do not possess a true consciousness.

This should not be confused with a lack of intelligence: some NON-SAPIENT creatures have analytical and problem-solving skills which far outstrip a human. However, their lack of consciousness generally means that they lack the ability to reason and make conscious decisions - they instead rely purely on their more animalistic instincts.

Whilst generally considered to lie outside the axis of 'good' and 'evil', due to their intrinsic lack of morality and ethics, some NON-SAPIENT creatures can be incredibly caring, whilst others are vicious. When a NON-SAPIENT being is described as 'good' or 'evil', it should therefore be understood in these more primal terms.

Ineffable

A creature which possesses an INEFFABLE mind has a consciousness that is beyond the realm of the humanoid mind to conceive. The very classification of sapience or not is entirely irrelevant to their being. Spirits, and abominations are generally considered 'ineffable', as are the most powerful celestials.

The term UNLIVING is also used to apply to beings which have an INEFFABLE mind, due to the popular image that such creatures are not truly 'alive' in the sense that we would consider them.

INEFFABLE creatures often originate from extraplanar dimensions, or were created by ancient and primal magics. They are therefore often susceptible to CELESTIAL attacks, which uses alien energy to strip away at whatever constitutes a soul for these creatures.

Types

The TYPE of a creature denotes how creatures are related to each other, and gives a hint at their intrinsic nature. Creatures which share a TYPE often have many characteristics in common, both visually and in terms of the magic and power that they wield.

Though often closely linked, many creatures of the same TYPE have a different kind of MIND.

ABOMINATION: An ABOMINATION is an incomprehensibly alien creature from the depths of the ELDRITCH DOMAINS, or even the VOID BEYOND. Primal, extraplanar beings, even attempting to comprehend the existence of such creatures is enough to break the minds of weaker individuals.

BEAST: A BEAST is a (generally) NON-SAPIENT creature of magical or mundane nature, which forms a natural part of the life cycle in their environment. Almost all non-magical creatures are classified as BEASTS, as are many of the most common magical creatures.

CELESTIAL: CELESTIALS are natives of some of the more distant higher planes, such as the heavenly ELYSIUM, or the awful TARTARUS. ANGELS, DEVILS and other beings form the bulk of the CELESTIALS, normally possessing incredible power they have, throughout history, been mistaken for servants of the Gods and sometimes even for gods in their own right.

CONSTRUCT: A CONSTRUCT is an artificially created being. Usually constructed from inorganic materials such as metal, stone or clay and animated using powerful magic or technological means. Though not considered alive, some rare constructs do contain a SAPIENT mind.

DEMON: DEMONS are malevolent magical creatures, often possessing an intrinsic affinity for the DARK ARTS, and a thirst for human flesh. Demons can take many forms, and can be found across the multiverse. Some demons, like elementals, harbour an affinity for a certain aspect of the universe, others serve powerful beings, and some demons rise to power in their own right and crown themselves DEMON PRINCES. Over the centuries, most of the truly horrifying demons have been banished from the mortal realm, leaving behind only minor evils such as the Grindylow or the Kappa. Sometimes, however, a Dark Witch or Wizard reaches through the barriers between worlds and pulls one of the more abhorrent powers into this world.

DRACONID: A dragon or dragon-like creature would be classified as a DRACONID. Usually characterised by an enormous reptilian form and affinity for elemental flame, and often possessing both incredible physical and magical power, any member of the Draconid family should be treated with fear and respect, the True Dragons most of all.

ELEMENTAL: ELEMENTALS are creatures which embody one of the classical elements: fire, air, water, or earth (as well as many others). Most hail from one of the ELEMENTAL PLANES, though many magical creatures native to the Mortal Plane are considered Elementals, such as the Ashwinder Snake, or the Frost Salamander.

FLORA: Strictly speaking, FLORA is a catchall term for all plant life. In this context, however, it includes a range of magical plants, imbued with a degree of ambulation, movement or other means of interacting with the outside world.

GIGANTOID: The GIGANTOIDS are a family of oversized human-esque creatures. Though large in frame, they are often incredibly dim-witted and slow. Trolls, ogres and giants form the core of the GIGANTOID family.

HUMANOID: The group of beings generally referred to as people, the HUMANOID groups comprises of all the human subspecies - both wizarding and muggle - as well as the semi-human creatures such as Centaurs, Merpeople, Goblins and Veela. Half-giants often find themselves in the humanoid category, whilst their full-giant kin are considered GIGANTOIDS.

IMP: The IMPS are vaguely humanoid creatures, though besides the Elves, they mostly possess only limited intellect. An IMP is immediately distinguished from even the shortest dwarf by their diminutive stature (rarely reaching more than 2 feet in height), and their innate magic which seems to operate on entirely different rules to that used by most humanoids. Elves, hobgoblins and fairies are the most prominent member of the IMP family.

MONSTER: Many beings classified as MONSTERS could feasibly be considered BEASTS, in the strictest sense of the word. However, whilst a BEAST can live in harmony inside its ecological niche (even if that necessitates aggression and special abilities), a MONSTER is nothing but a disruptive and lethal influence, and often form the centre of dangerous myths and legends. MONSTERS are almost universally destructive, vicious and incredibly dangerous to face.

PHANTASM: A PHANTASM is a non-corporeal or ghostly being, often associated with the souls of departed individuals, and manifestations of primal forces in the mortal plane.

SPRITE: SPRITES are creatures which straddle worlds, often existing as much in the Astral Realm as they do in the mortal realm. Sometimes corporeal, and sometimes ghostly, the SPRITES are united in their overarching goodness and fondness for living beings. Often considered by muggles to be guardian spirits, the Sprites often choose an area or a domain to protect, and their rage when their protection is violated can be potent.

UNDEAD: The UNDEAD are profane creations, the mortal remains of a once-living creature reanimated by powerful necro-mantic magic, or possessed by an evil spirit. The Walking Corpses, as well as Vampires, fall into this category.

Rating

The Department of Magical Beasts, an important part of the Ministry of Magic, maintains a classification scheme to determine the threat posed by individual magical creatures, labelling creatures between 0 and VII. A creature with a low rating can be dealt with easily, whilst a rating of V or above is an immediate cause for concern.

Category	Description
0	Utterly harmless, incapable of inflicting harm
I	“Boring”, capable of inflicting only tiny injuries
II	Mostly harmless, commonly domesticated
III	Poses only minimal danger to a capable individual
IV	A group of competent individuals can handle, though an individual would face serious harm.
V	Requires specialist knowledge, or a group of highly trained individuals to defeat
VI	Known Wizard-Killer, impossible to control or train. Requires a large group of exceptionally trained warriors to defeat
VII	Lethal, poses a viable extinction-level threat to population centres if left unchecked. Few-to-no examples in recorded history of wizards successfully defeating them.

3: Bestiary

Need to add the beast.xlsx file to git repository!

Beasts to add:

Raiju (Japanese lightning dog)

In this section a number of different creatures are presented for the GM's use in building encounters. These creatures come with a set of basic canonical background information, as well as a 'statblock', which contains the necessary statistics for these creatures to perform checks, and ultimately engage in combat and other character interactions.

Beast Abilities

Whilst all BEASTS share the same 9 base ASPECTS as player characters, and many of the same ABILITIES. However for streamlining reasons, the number of ABILITIES each individual beast has is more restricted than a player character: if an ABILITY is not mentioned in the provided statblock, you may assume it has a value of ◊◊◊◊◊◊◊◊.

Though they have far fewer proficiencies, Beasts do have access to all of the same ABILITIES as the player characters - though actions such as IMBUE and CRAFT are unlikely to come up except in the most unusual of circumstances!

In addition to the 30 base ABILITIES, some beasts have additional abilities determined by their non-human and, in some cases, magical physiology:

Ability	Description
CLIMB	Many beings have the ability to climb trees, and adhere to solid surfaces. A high rating means they can move without hindrance.
COMMAND	Some creatures command their lessers and may order them to do their bidding - a higher rating indicates the level of control they have over their forces.
ELUSION	Elusion is the natural camouflaging ability of a being - morphing into the background, changing colour and even turning invisible.
FLIGHT	A creature with the flying ability may defy gravity, either with wings, or innate magical levitation. A higher rating means faster flight and more elaborate manoeuvres.
REGENERATION	This ability allows a creature to heal themselves rapidly as their physical form regenerates.
SENSES	Many creatures have senses beyond those that humans have: the ability to sense tremors in the ground, see in the dark, as well as more arcane abilities such as the ability to detect magic.
SHAPECHANGE	A creature with this ability may alter their shape and form - a higher rating means more drastic changes to their appearance.
SPELLCASTING	A replacement for individual AFFINITIES. A creature with this ability can innately cast magic using this statistic.

ACROMANTULA

The acromantula are an incredibly rare - and incredibly dangerous - species of gigantic, intelligent spiders. Found mainly in dense forests, where they weave their web-covered nests, they only occasionally go out to hunt, preferring instead to let their prey come to them.

Hatching from eggs the size of rugby balls, the oldest specimens have legspans in excess of 10 metres. Their equally enormous fangs contain a potent venom. The speed, strength and venom, however, is not what makes the Acromantula a truly awful foe. Rather, their greatest weapon is their formiddable intellect, which allows them to outthink even the greatest wizards.

Elaborate Lairs: A spider's central tenet is patience: waiting for prey to come to you. Acromantula are no different, though they work on a slightly different scale. Over their multi-decade-long lifespan, a Patriarch will build an enormous, complex labyrinth of webs and forest, in order to ensnare their unsuspecting prey.

Talking Spiders: Acromantula have the ability to speak the spider tongue, to command their legions of arachnid followers. As they age and their minds continue to develop, they even gain the ability to understand and eventually speak in human tongues.

Keen Sight: In addition to their web-enhanced senses, the 8 compound eyes of the acromantula allow them to see in incredible detail, even in dim light.

Webspinners: As members of the spider family, all Acromantula have an affinity for spinning webs, and using them to sense and then ensnare their prey.

ACROMANTULA ADULT

MoM Rating: V (Sapient Monstrosity)

From a nest of several thousand HATCHLINGS, only one or two survive the brutal and vicious ascent to adulthood within an ACROMANTULA colony, shedding their final adolescent carapace to become a full-grown ACROMANTULA.

As a result of this violent and competitive environment, a fully grown ACROMANTULA is something to be greatly feared. No ACROMANTULA survives this long without a willingness and ability to brutally slay even their closest allies, so that only the most murderous, brutal and cunning spiders remain.

Though they can run incredibly quickly and they utilise a ranged web attack to ensnare their prey, the most terrifying aspect of a full-grown ACROMANTULA is their above-human level of intelligence, not only can they liquify your innards, they can counter even the most elaborate plan to outwit them.

ACROMANTULA PATRIARCH

MoM Rating: VI (Sapient Monstrosity)

If it is rare for a HATCHLING to survive to adulthood, it is even rarer for an ACROMANTULA to grow old, and gain the mantle of the PATRIARCH.

As the ACROMANTULA never stop growing, by the time they reach 40 or 50 years old, they have reached truly gargantuan sizes, with legspans up to 10m, with an exoskeleton that is so thick that almost nothing can penetrate it.

Though they cut a truly terrifying figure, their bodies have become decrepit with age, and they do not retain the nimbleness of their younger forms, instead relying on their formidable intellect and their ability to command legions of their brood to protect them.

ANGELS

Angels are powerful, beautiful Celestial creatures, denizens of Elysium, one of the Higher Planes, though they can be found throughout the multiverse. Often perceived as powerful agents of Deities, servants of benevolent gods, it is actually unknown who or what provides these powerful creatures with their deeper purpose.

Benevolent Fury: Almost universally pure of heart and intrinsically ethical and good, Angels are representative of everything full of light and life in the universe. Angels will never compromise their core beliefs. They are not, however, pacifists. Angels are great and powerful warriors, and will strike down their enemies in the name of protecting those who cannot protect themselves.

Angelic Host: The Angelic society is known as the Angelic Host, a powerful seemingly omniscient society which dwells almost entirely in the Silver City found at the centre of Elysium. This society is highly structured and hierarchical, with angels being created to fill specific niches within each echelon of society. Each Angel derives their powers from their position within the angelic hierarchy, with the highest tiers wielding terrifying amounts of power.

Holy Crusades: Angels only leave the Silver City on two conditions, the most common of which is being directed on a holy quest by one of their superiors. Most Angels met outside of Elysium are conducting such a quest. The difficulty of the quest depends on the ranking of the angel in question: a cherubim might be sent out to conduct a blessing, or deliver a message, whilst a quest which calls for an Archangel to be sent would be a truly dire universe-ending scenario.

Fallen Angel: The other condition under which an Angel is refused entry into the Silver City is if they have fallen. Though Angels will never compromise their core beliefs, and are almost inherently good in nature it is possible for them to fall victim to their own pride and hubris. If this happens, an angel may act against the wishes of the Host, or inadvertently perform some great act of evil.

BLOCK	◆◆◆◆◆○○○
DODGE	◆◆◆◆◆○○○

If this happens, the Host will disavow them, and cast them out. Without the purpose granted to them by the rigid structure of Angelic society, many such fallen angels go entirely mad. Others sink into a deep, vengeful fury and declare war on the Host, whilst others are believed to undergo a transformation, becoming powerful demonic creatures.

Immortal Spirit: As a celestial being, an angel is incredibly resilient and requires neither food, drink, air or sleep (though they may enjoy the experience).

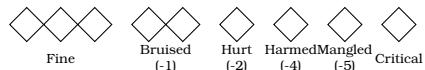

CHERUBIM

MoM Rating: IV (Ineffable Celestial)

The Cherubim are the lowest (and youngest) order of ANGELS, and as such are typically given the least dangerous quests. It is thought that this is the reason that MUGGLE art has depicted them as chubby little babies with wings. Of course, even the most lowly angel wields immense power, and the idea of them taking on such a lowly form is considered highly insulting. Instead they appear as the typical 'angel', a beautiful, winged individual of indeterminate gender, whose voice sings out like a choir. The holy quests assigned to the Cherubim are those which most commonly involve mortal beings, they are often tasked with delivering important missives to Emperors, providing visions of the future to prompt heroes to venture forth to vanquish evil, or to act as a guardian for an important individual as they grow. With these gentle prompts, the Cherubim are able to alter the course of events across the multiverse.

SERAPHIM

MoM Rating: VI (Ineffable Celestial)

The most numerous class of ANGELIC WARRIOR, the Seraphim are the righteous smiters of the universe. Appearing as a magnificent armoured humanoid with multiple pairs of soft, golden wings extending from their back, they wield spears forged from pure light and a soft golden halo is ever-present above their head.

The primary goal of the Seraphim is to fight evil and slay those who would threaten others and upset the balance between good and evil across the planes. They are often regarded amongst the mightiest warriors in existence, though this comes with a certain amount of hubris.

Though they are powerful warriors in their own right, the Seraphim are most powerful when working in unison, being sent out in large groups (a CHOIR) to take down evildoers.

THRONE

MoM Rating: VII (Ineffable Celestial)

It is incredibly rare to see a Throne outside of the SILVER CITY, for they are not messengers or mighty warriors – but instead scholars, guardians of knowledge and secrets.

Their physical form is hard for a mortal being to comprehend – the closest anyone has ever really got is wheels within wheels, covered in eyes, and even that image was enough to break the mind of the human who witnessed it. They are certainly the least humanoid of the ANGELS, and their intellect is equally alien.

The Thrones have an almost perfect recollection of every event in history, and collect any and all knowledge they can in their vast libraries, in the hope that it will one day be useful in the fight against the ever-present evils. The rare occasions that they venture out of their libraries, it is to find some arcane secret – either to help their own cause, or to prevent it from falling into the wrong hands.

Apparitions are ghostly creatures - spirits and ghosts which defy the laws of life and death, and yet continue to roam the mortal realms.

They can pass through solid objects at will, move with blatant disregard for the force of gravity, as well as being immune to all normal forms of attack.

Unknowable Purpose: It is not understood what drives apparitions of any kind to remain behind on the mortal plain. Some speculate that all apparitions are manifestations of lost souls, bound to the Earth through their need to find closure, or complete some important task. Others speculate that they are glitches in the fabric of reality, whose motives even they themselves do not understand.

Unkillable: It is impossible to kill an apparition, though it is possible to banish them for a time. The only known way to permanently deal with an apparition is to plunge one into the Void, or help them find the closure they need, or otherwise convince them to relinquish their hold on the mortal realm.

Unusually out of apparitions and other spiritual creatures, poltergeists are able to take on physical form and cast primitive forms of magic - which they use to wreak chaos and play pranks on unsuspecting humans.

ARACHNID

The arachnids are a family of giant spider found throughout the wizarding world. Most members of this species are suspected to have been formed from mundane species that were experimented upon by witches and wizards throughout history, though others are known to occur in freak mutations.

Whatever the mechanism for bringing them into this world, many have since escaped into the wild, to wreak havoc on muggles and wizard-kind alike - some spinning their webs to ensnare the unwary, others prowling and hunting directly for their prey.

Great Size: The magical arachnids are much larger than their non-magical compatriots. Though smaller than acromantula, some species can reach legspans of up to one metre.

Keen Sight: In addition to their web-enhanced senses, the 8 compound eyes of arachnids allow them to see in incredible detail, even in dim light

Webspinners: As members of the spider family, all arachnids have an affinity for spinning webs, and using them to sense and then ensnare their prey.

The name of the Howling Tick is misleading, as it is neither a tick, and nor does it howl. Instead the name comes from its tendency to suck blood from its victims, and the howls of pain that result. BEAST DEMON

Demons prowled the earth for many millenia before the dawn of human civilization, and come in many thousands of shapes and forms. The BEAST DEMONS are those which share – at least to a cursory glance – a visual similarity with a non-magical creature, as well as a more bestial intelligence, and reliance on primal instinct above tactics and reasoned thought.

Typically using their more unassuming forms to get close to their prey, they unleash their demonic fury and hunger upon their prey, leaving no trace of their meal.

NOGTAIL

MoM Rating: IV (Ineffable Demon)

One of the lesser demons still native to the mortal realm, the Nogtail resembles a stunted piglet, albeit with a thick stubby tail and elongated legs.

Nogtails are known to sneak into farms to suckle from an ordinary pig, bringing with them a terrible, cursed blight which stuck to the land. Capable of reaching immense speeds on land, catching a Nogtail is therefore impossible – the only way to drive one off for good is to hunt them down and chase it away with a pure-white dog.

The nogtail poses a threat not only because of the blight which follows it, but because of their voracious appetite, wicked teeth and willingness to take a bite out of any fool who gets too close to them.

Native to the southern part of Africa, this demonic entity takes the form of a beautifully sleek and well-kept hyena, marred only by the addition of a humanoid head protruding from the back of its normal snouted face.

This human face speaks honeyed words in a calming, almost hypnotic voice and is known to lure children out into the darkness, where the hyena mouth uses its wickedly long teeth and near-unbreakable grip to maul any who cross its path.

BOWTRUCKLE

Bowtruckles are a species of hand-sized, insect-eating humanoids which reside inside trees. Bowtruckles prefer to make their home in trees with wand-quality wood (or perhaps, it is the presence of a Bowtruckle which makes a tree wand-grade), and a single tree can host up to 5 generations of the same bowtruckle clan.

Normally peacable and shy creatures, they become territorial and violent when their home tree is threatened.

The classification of the intelligence of the BOWTRUCKLES has been somewhat controversial – they are evidently intelligent and able to communicate with and understand humans, however they do not seem to possess the ability for abstract thinking or tool usage that most consider necessary for a SAPIENT classification.

Camouflaged: Bowtruckles blend in perfectly with their trees, when they wish to pass unnoticed, they appear as nothing more than a set of leafy twigs. It is only by catching them in motion that they can be easily spotted.

Natural Climbers: Living their entire life in trees, bowtruckles are natural climbers, and can move across near-sheer vertical surfaces as easily as they walk.

Long Fingers: Nominally evolved to help dig insects out of the bark of a tree, the long spindly fingers of a bowtruckle can be used to perform very delicate tasks, such as picking a lock, or used offensively to poke out the eyes of those who threaten their treetop homes.

SOFTWOOD BOWTRUCKLE

MoM Rating: II (Non-sapient Imp)

The Softwood Bowtruckle, as the name may suggest, reside within softwood trees, typically pine, cedars, firs, yews and redwoods, and prefer a cooler or damper environment than their hardwood cousins. They appear as green-skinned elfin creatures with leaves growing from random parts of their body, and are often said to have 'kind faces'.

The Softwood branch of the family are incredibly flexible, able to contort themselves through even the smallest of gaps as they hunt for insects, though this comes at the expense of a natural armour.

The softwood is the most friendly of the bowtruckle species, often forming friendships with humans and other animals which they pass down through generations. However, they have also shown a tendency to become emotional and sulk when their 'friend' gives them insufficient attention.

HARDWOOD BOWTRUCKLE

MoM Rating: III (Non-sapient Imp)

Residing within mighty hardwood trees such as oaks, ironwoods, mahoganies and willows, the Hardwoods are much hardier and more resilient than their softwood brethren.

The bodies of the hardwood bowtruckles seem to be composed almost entirely from bark, wood and twigs intertwined to form the body. Small sproutings of green may be seen from their body during spring (from which their young grow), but otherwise they are without discernable features.

This hardness has evolved because life for the hardwoods is much tougher and more violent than the softwoods. Whilst softwoods are known to form friendships and only attack when provoked, the hardwoods are more likely to flee or lash out at unwanted visitors.

CERATOTHID

The Ceratothids are a family of loosely related magical quadrupeds. Defined by their huge bulk and relatively bovine-like appearance, most Ceratothid's have a gentle temperament until angered, at which point their great mass and inherent magic makes them dangerous foes.

The Graphorn is found in mountainous European regions. Large and greyish purple with a humped back, the Graphorn has a number of very long, sharp and golden horns running across its back, walks on large, four-thumbed feet, and has an extremely aggressive nature. Their mouth is surrounded by a number of prehensile tendrils, which they use both for manipulating food, and for sensing their surroundings.

Mountain trolls can occasionally be seen mounted on Graphorns, though the latter do not seem to take kindly to attempts to tame them and it is more common to see a troll covered in Graphorn scars. Powdered Graphorn horn is used in many potions, though it is immensely expensive owing to the difficulty in collecting it. Graphorn hide is even tougher than a dragon's and repels most spells.

ERUMPENT

MoM Rating: V (Non-sapient Beast)

An enormous, rhinocerous-like magical beast hailing from Africa, the Erumpent is an extremely dangerous beast, thanks to the gigantic horn which protrudes from its head.

This horn pierces even the toughest armour and contains a naturally-occurring alchemical which causes whatever it is injected into to detonate in a mighty explosion. In addition to this overwhelming (literal) firepower, the Erumpent's hide is near-immune to many powerful magics.

RE'EM

Once abundant across the North American continent, the mighty Re'em has been hunted to near extinction. Their mighty frames reach up to 3m, and are completely covered in a lustrous golden hide.

Though exquisite, this hide is not the reason for their desirability as prey: rather it is their blood, which acts as a powerful alchemical reagent, imparting on the drinker a fraction of the immense strength of the Re'em.

It is said that once a Re'em has started moving, no force, physical or magical can stop them or change their path unless they choose to – researchers have found that diving out of the way of the path of a Re'em on the warpath is often the most sensible option.

CHIMERA

MoM Rating: VII (Non-sapient Monstrosity)

One of the most dangerous, and notorious, artificial magical creatures in all of history, the CHIMERA truly is a terrifying beast. Said to have been created by the mad witch ECHIDNA, the 'mother of monsters', the Chimera escaped into the world and began their reign of terror.

Possessing the heads of both a lion and a goat, with a further snake-head protruding from its serpentine tail – all of which have the ability to act independently, the chimera would be terrifying enough with this alone. Alas, ECHIDNA was not yet done – the goat's head has the ability to breath gouts of fire and summon bolts of lightning, whilst the lion's head can release a howl which pierces deep into the minds of those unfortunate enough to be surrounding it.

Only one wizard is on record as having successfully defeating a chimera – and they were killed by the sheer effort required. Humanity is lucky that the chimera are also incredibly individualistic and violent towards their own kind, only mating once a century – else chimera would probably be the dominant species on this planet.

CLOAKWRAITHS

A tattered black cloak might not seem the most terrifying piece of attire that a being could don, though those who have encountered the CLOAKWRAITHS might say differently.

No-one really knows where they come from, though ancient legends say that they are the spirits of those too evil to pass to the other side. Some WRAITHS appear as gaunt almost-humanoids beneath their eponymous shrouds, whilst others seem to have no corporeal form. Some believe that they are in fact a single type of being at various points in their lifecycle, whilst others believe them to be individual manifestations of primal human fears.

What they all have in common (besides the ominous cloak), is an evil aura of terror, and a hunger for human souls.

LETHIFOLD

MoM Rating: IV (Ineffable Abomination)

Also known as a LIVING SHROUD, a Lethifold is a carnivorous and highly dangerous magical creature.

Unlike other CLOAKWRAITHS, a Lethifold appears to have no physical form, appearing instead as a gently floating and flapping shroud of black fabric, which crawls out of the shadows to envelop and then devour their victim.

When a Lethifold devours a victim, the only remaining sign of their once-physical existence is a slight thickening of the lethifold, and a handful of thread-like tendrils extending from beneath its body, otherwise the lethifold leaves no trace.

Perhaps the most feared (and certainly the most well-known) of the CLOAKWRAITHS, the Dementor appear as exceptionally tall, gaunt and necrotic humanoids beneath their cloak, as their float effortlessly through space.

They use an aura of ice and terror to incapacitate their foes, before delivering the infamous 'dementor's kiss', an act which devours the very soul of a being, leaving them a lifeless husk.

Strangely, despite being reviled and feared throughout history, DEMENTORS are the only ABOMINATION ever employed by the MINISTRY - being used as guards/torturers for AZKABAN PRISON for almost 200 years, until they sided with LORD VOLDEMORT.

SHUAGH

MoM Rating: VI (Ineffable Abomination)

The Shuagh are a form of mounted CLOAKWRAITH, never seen without their sickly and skeletal horses, which produce no sound as they gallop over devastated wasteland.

Seemingly unique amongst the other CLOAKWRAITHS, the Shuagh use tools and weapons to achieve their goals: the fermenting of war, chaos and unbridled fury. The very presence of a Shuagh is enough to anger even the most passive of individuals, and so the arrival of a Shuagh was often seen as the precursor to bloodshed and infighting.

ELF

Modern muggle culture frequently imagines Elves to be superhuman, immortal and otherworldly creatures – outwardly appearing as impossibly beautiful humans and wielding immense, primal magic. This is primarily due to the influence of the muggle writer Tolkein (who was himself a squib). In reality, elves are much closer to those envisaged in medieval Germanic mythology – small, impish tricksters.

Though they have a love for tricks and fun, the most common form of elf throughout history, the Brúnásu, or Common Brownie often helped humans by performing small chores for them. In one of the more shameful acts of wizarding history, the Brúnásu were then systematically enslaved and brainwashed into eternal servitude, leading to the creation of the race of House-Elves. Witnessing this horrific act of human cruelty, many of the other elf species retreated into relative obscurity.

Diminutive Frame: Almost all species of Elf are tiny in stature – rarely reaching more than 3ft in height – with skinny and spindly arms and legs. They rely on magic for physical acts that their size denies them.

Elfin Magics: Elf magic is unlike any that is understood by humans, who often look down on it as inferior. Some scholars, however, have hypothesised that elfin magic is in fact far superior to wizard magic. It is only due to the elfin spirit and its dislike of organisation and study (and probably helped by wizard oppression) that they have not learned to harness it to its full potential. The most prominent quirk of elfin magic is their ability to ignore even the strongest magical wards and boundaries.

Fond of Trickery: All elves (except perhaps the brainwashed House Elves) are fond of trickery and fun. They play endless pranks on one another, delighting in causing small amounts of chaos. Even those who are dedicated to cleaning and tidying play the occassional trick: muggles notice this in the form of missing socks, or keys never quite being where they were left.

Holding Court: Elven society is chaotic and unorganised. They rarely recognise a leader, though they sometimes assemble themselves into bands and groups for the purpose of safety. This all changes when one of the Elven Princes summons them to their Seelie Court. Every free-elf belongs to one of these courts, which is presided over by one of the more powerful Huldufólk. Court is only summoned in times of great emergency, such as conflict with another court, or when a great external threat is detected.

GIANTS

Giants are very large bipdal beings, growing up to 8m (~25ft) in height. Many giants appear to be simply humongous humans, whilst others have disproportionate features, such as long arms which drag along the floor, or oversized heads. Rarer still are those which possess more bestial features, such as elongated fangs, thick green hide or snouted noses. There is no known rhyme or reason for how such features arise in the giant genetics, as members of even close family can vary wildly in their outward appearance.

What is a constant amongst all giants is their phenomenal strength and their willingness to use it. Wizarding history has recorded bloody inter-giant wars going back millenia, and there have been more than several occasions of giants turning their ferocity onto wizardkind, which has led to a general distrust, fear and even hatred of the giant clans, which was only exacerbated when the Northern Clans joined forces with Voldemort during the Wizarding Wars.

Organised Society: Though to wizards the giants appear chaotic, violent and disorganised, they possess a highly rigid society within and between clans. The Gurg is the warleader, who rules the clan in all matters related to combat: they decide when to send out raiding and hunting parties and when war is declared. The Gurg is the mightiest warrior in the clan – a new Gurg is chosen by another warrior defeating them in single combat, often to the death. The Council of Elders rules the clan in all other matters, and resolves internal disputes. Membership of the council is determined by a rudimentary form of democracy in a ritual which predates even Athenian democracy.

Intelligent Beings: Though generally not as intelligent as humans, giants are significantly more intelligent than mere beasts, as well as other gigantoid brethren such as Trolls. They are capable of manufacturing and using armour, weapons and tools both in battle, and in every day life. In many ways, giant technology is similar to human society ~2000 years ago.

Prideful: Though their relative lack of intelligence is well known in the wizarding community, it is a point of some contention amongst the giants, who wish to be seen as just as intelligent as the other sapient races. Virtually all negative interactions between giants and humans has arisen because the humans condescended giants, or otherwise lorded their intelligence over the giants. When dealing with giants, it is almost always best to restrain the urge to show off – use simple sentences and ideas, give the giants time and space to think things through and, most importantly, not make a big deal out of behaving in this fashion.

Resilience: Full-blooded Giants are potentially even more resistant to magic than dragons, requiring exceptionally powerful magic to subdue them. Though their skin appears no more protective than normal humans, their large size means standard weaponry does not pose much of a threat to them, though it does irritate them.

Magic Appreciation: Though they cannot wield magic themselves, giants are aware of magic and find the idea of it fascinating (as long as it is not being used against them that is). The best way to integrate yourself with a giant is to provide them with a spectacular show of magic, and gift them a magical device or trinket.

The RADIANT GARDENS are one of the realms beyond our own which resonates strongly with one of the primal magical elements – in this case the element of LIGHT. The beings native to this particular corner of the multiverse are therefore known as LIGHT ELEMENTALS.

The RADIANT GARDENS are an almost heaven-like domain, filled at all times with a diffuse, golden glow, interspersed with rainbows containing more colours than the human mind can conceive of. LIGHT ELEMENTALS, having formed from this incandescent space, are all therefore naturally able to manipulate and channel radiance in all its forms, and abhor darkness and shadows.

Just as no two rainbows are perfectly alike, so too are LIGHT ELEMENTALS unique and distinct creatures, with wildly varying morphology and characteristics – some appear as perfectly normal solid creatures, whilst others seem to be made up of pure, distilled light.

SOLON

MoM Rating: III (Non-Sapient Elemental)

Solons are lesser elementals hailing from the Radiant Gardens, the Elemental plane of light. They are crystalline creatures, and glow with an inner radiance which shifts and refracts through their bodies as they move.

CHALKYDRI

MoM Rating: V (Non-sapient Elemental)

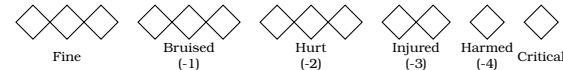

Also known as the 'Heralds of Dawn', these copper-skinned, winged serpent-like creatures were often mistaken for a species of DRAGON throughout history, and it is only recently that their true origins have been determined.

Possessing the face and tail of a crocodile, but the body of a lion and rows upon rows of rainbow-coloured wings (up to 14 pairs on the oldest known specimen), these creatures typically reside within the coronosphere of a sun, or near some other cosmically powerful source of light, descending planetside only for a few hours per year, and even then, they appear only during the first few moments of dawn.

When the sunlight hits their copper-bronze skin, it splits off into a mesmerising rainbow display, and causes their entire body to hum with a resonance like a chorus of angels. Legend holds that it is this song which brings the dawn, rather than the other way around.

Though they do not seem particularly intelligent, and are currently classified as 'beasts' by the MINISTRY, this does not mean that they are savage – in fact, the Chalkydri are often kind and gentle creatures, the few times that they have been recorded as coming into direct conflict with humans it was eventually discovered that the humans were threatening some other life form with extinction, drawing the ire of the Chalkydri.

4: Cosmology

Though little of it is talked about in the Wizarding World, for the study of it is highly restricted, and confined almost entirely to the Department of Mysteries (and its various international variants), the universe is not as simple as it might first seem.

Throughout most of the modern history of the Western world, it has been held that there are three planes of existence: the Mortal world, where we reside, and then two higher planes: Heaven and Hell. In contrast, modern atheism holds that there is but one plane, and some adherents of a particular interpretation of Quantum Mechanics believe that there are an infinite number of copies of the Mortal plane. It seems unlikely that the true nature of these 'Planes' will ever be understood by mortal minds.

The Department of Mysteries, however, was created with the primary goal of studying these 'Planes of Existence'. The Department has established that there are in indeed multiple 'realms', or planes of existence. The total number of planes is actually unknown, for they are difficult to map, but the Department has so far managed to place them into 5 categories.

1. The Mortal World
2. The Astral Realm
3. The Higher Planes
4. The Eldritch Domain
5. The Void

It seems that there is some form of notion of 'distance', although given the multidimensional nature of the realms, it is not what you or I would recognise as distance, but some realms are 'further' away from the mundane reality that we exist in, and it takes significant effort to traverse this 'distance'. The 'closer' a Plane is, the easier it is to access. Roughly speaking, as you traverse down the above list, you get further and further away from our reality.

The Mortal World

The Mortal World is the universe that we see around us. It contains every star in the sky, and is seemingly infinite in extent.

Events in this World follow well-established rules, what the Muggles call 'the laws of physics', though these 'laws' may be tweaked somewhat by the use of magic.

Most Sapient beings go their entire life without knowing that there is anything besides the Mortal World in existence.

The Astral Realm

The Astral Realm is probably the plane that lies closest to the Mortal World, and is often imagined by those who study it as a blanket, lying over the top of the mortal realm.

Every point in the Mortal World has a corresponding point in the Astral Realm, however, the notions of space and time that we are comfortable with do not seem to apply in the Astral Realm. Past, present and future coexist all at once, and paths through the astral realm have a habit of not ending up where you'd expect them to.

It is from the astral realm, therefore, that seers are able to glean information about the future. It is also speculated that when a wizard apparates, they actually briefly enter into the astral realm, traverse a path that either takes no time at all, or perhaps has no length at all (or maybe both?), and then exit again, finding themselves to have instantaneously transported.

Visually, the Astral realm looks like a translucent mimicry of the mortal realm, filled with drifting mist, thick fog and ghostlike figures. One may therefore observe what is going on in the Mortal Realm from the Astral, but not the other way around without special training.

The Higher Planes

The Higher Planes is the collective name given to the realms which lie between the Astral Realm and the insanity-inducing Eldritch Domains.

Unlike the Astral Realm, the Higher Planes are far enough away from the Mortal World that most of them do not have a 1:1 correspondence with spatial point. Some of the Planes are as large as our universe, others may encompass only a single planet, or even a single room in extreme cases.

Most of the Planes in this category find themselves devoted to some elemental or conceptual aspect found in the real world – be it the Plane of Fire (Vulcan), or the Plane of Order (Machina). It is hypothesised that entities from these Planes that found their way to the Mortal Realm in the distant past were often mistaken for Gods.

Generally speaking, the only way to travel to one of the Higher Planes is by creating a Portal, and act that requires punching a hole through the walls of reality. This is an act so potentially destructive to all life on Earth that it is classified as a Dark Art, and should only be attempted by the most skilled wizards. A list of Planes that have previously been visited is found at the end of this section.

The Eldritch Domains

Little is known about the Eldritch Domains. It is thought that they are similar in structure to the Higher Planes, but are instead home to entities that have been dubbed the Eldritch Horrors. Only one Sapient – a muggle child in the late 1890s – has ever even glimpsed an Eldritch Domain and not been driven to complete insanity, and it is evident from his subsequent career as an author that he was not unscarred by the experience.

The Eldritch Horrors are entities beyond human comprehension, and go by many names: the Chaos Gods, The Great Old Ones, Devourer of Stars, Harbingers of Apocalypse to name but a few. They are not inherently evil, and are in fact so utterly alien that the concept of good and evil is barely applicable to beings of such cosmic power.

The Void

The Void is, unlike the other realms, omnipresent. It is simultaneously the closest Realm to the Mortal World, and yet also the most distant. It is thought that the Void is the hyper-dimensional space in which all the other Planes move, the glue that holds the universe together.

The Void possesses at least 16 spatial dimensions, and 4 temporal dimensions, which means that even objects that enter the Void simultaneously (from the point of view of another plane) will end up dispersed across the 20-dimensional manifold that represents the void.

Utterly, completely empty, the Void is the true vacuum of the multiverse. So black that empty space seems like a thick soup, and so dark that no light may propagate. The Void truly lives up to its name.

Higher Planes

Abyss: The Plane of Terror

Abyss is a plane that warps itself according to the fears of those who enter it. Formed from an endless, parched wasteland under a black sun, at the centre of which lies an sinkhole so deep it seems to have no end. Embedded into the walls of the sinkhole, spiralling infinitely downwards are thousands – millions – of doors, each with an individuals name inscribed upon it.

Behind every door lies a room of indeterminate size, containing the thing that most terrifies the being named on the door, be it an infinite maze, a posse of evil clowns, or an ocean populated by bloodthirsty sharks. Once inside a room, it is impossible to leave until you conquer your fears.

When entering Abyss, each individual is teleported into the room bearing their own name, and upon escaping, formless beings of shadow and darkness will attempt to force you back inside.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Abyss causes all entities in the region take the Terrified status.

Aeolus: The Plane of Storms and Winds

A plane of infinite expanse, filled with swirling air, floating clouds and drifting chunks of earth, Aeolus is the Plane associated with the element of Air.

There is no solid ground to be found in Aeolus, the civilisations found within are built upon the floating mountains that dot the skyscape, or perhaps carved out of condensed and harness cloud. These civilisations live a nomadic life as they drift through the endless sky, never fixed in one place.

Current-charts, which map the airflow and allow you to plot a route through the sky, are the most valued currency in this domain, as are Storm-warnings, for the skies of Aeolus are often split apart by vicious storms that can last a century or more.

Aeolus is home to powerful wind-mages, who can calm the skies with a word, or whip up a brisk wind with a wave of their hand. It is these wind-mages who first constructed the Storm Avatars, and from Aeolus that Mortal wizards draw the stormclouds to construct their own facsimiles of the Avatars.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Aeolus causes a stormcloud fills the region giving severe obscuration, and targets inside take 2d10 electric damage per turn.

Eden: The Plane of Nature

A druidic paradise, Eden is a single, enormous garden that lies behind an enormous wall, which forms the boundary between this realm and the Void. Every single species of plant and animal life across the multiverse can be found living in perfect balance in Eden – the circle of life made manifest in a single region, for all of eternity.

No artificial structure can be built in Eden (outside of the Wall, of course), so no true civilisations are found within. The denizens of this realm – the Gardeners – instead tend to the wildlife, curing the sick and resolving conflicts, and are rewarded with fruit and wool, in return for their role in the Circle.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Eden gives the caster the ability to manipulate all plant life at will, causing them to grow as desired.

Elysium: The Plane of Blessings

Appearing as a gigantic city, constructed out of gleaming silver and shining marble, populated by beings that can only be described as Angels, it is said that Elysium is the place where dreams come true.

Indeed, one has to merely wish for something out loud, and a nearby Angel will promptly hand you the focus of your desires. Equally, the air in Elysium seems to be suffused with magic and positive energy, for every action that one attempts (even the most absurd), will succeed without question.

Of course, there is a price for such a blessed existence: an entity known as the Scribe – the chief angelic being – sits atop the highest tower in Elysium, judging the actions of all the inhabitants. If they fail her test, they are expelled from the Silver City.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Elysium grants all beings in the region check-advantage.

Hades: The Plane of Death

Like the astral plane, Hades appears as a mimicry of the Mortal World, albeit with a few alterations. The landscape is dotted with bomb-craters, bubonic plague pits, collapsed buildings and nuclear winter. Every single grotesque form of death is represented, somehow, in the environment, in a violent, deadly parody of the living world.

Populated entirely by ghosts, echoes of the living, no one is quite sure what causes a soul to be left in Hades. Some lucky souls are able to escape through the cracks and back to the Mortal Realm, forming the ghosts that wizardkind are aware of, but these are only a fraction of the ghosts found in Hades.

The living cannot spend much time in Hades, as the aura of death and decay seeps into their bones, and seeks to turn them into one of the ghouls that haunts its shattered landscape.

The Ministry of Magic possesses a portal to Hades, it lies deep beneath the Ministry itself, at the heart of the Department of Mysteries. However, this portal is one-way, so anyone who enters it without the ability to return home will surely perish.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Hades forces all beings below 50% health to pass an ATH(health) check (DV 10) or die instantly.

Hyperborea: The Plane of Ice

A land of endless glaciers and towering crystal-clear castles, Hyperborea is the Elemental Plane of Ice. Due to the freezing temperatures, the Hyperborean species tend to be much larger than their counterparts in other dimensions, to best preserve the heat. They also tend to be fiercely tribal – gathering together for warmth, but deeply fearful of outsiders.

The landscape of Hyperborea is sporadic, with vast featureless plains, interspersed with enormous mountain ranges, and fields of icebergs floating on highly-salted oceans.

Every time a wizard in the Mortal World summons an Avatar of Ice, he first begins by summoning a single snowflake from Hyperborea.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Hyperborea lowers the temperature in the region to -150 degrees Celsius, doing 3d8 cold damage per turn.

Machina: The Plane of Order

In Machina, everything is always in its correct place, for Machina is the Plane of Order, where chaos and randomness are abhorred and reviled. Over the millenia, the denizens of Machina have constructed enormous machines that enable them to control every aspect of reality down to the microsecond. The sun always rises at the same time every day, every coin toss lands on the same side, and the same events occur every single day.

Fearing the chaos inherent in biological systems, the denizens of Machina have also gradually replaced their organic components, until they are almost entirely mechanical in nature. The great cities that dot the moulded landscape – tracing out perfectly tesselating grids – are split into three sectors, depending on the modifications that the denizens have made to their bodies, and hence their preferred method of keeping order: clockwork, electronics and magic.

It is said that the first wizard to create a Golem learned the technique from the inhabitants of Machina.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Machina imposes order on the region, forcing all beings into their true form. Illusions shatter, transfiguration spells fail and astral effects are nullified.

Nirvana: The Plane of Peace

Nirvana is an alien landscape to those who first arrive – it is seemingly and endless white expanse, with no up or down, and no floor. Individuals move simply by willing themselves in a certain direction. The entire domain is suffused with an aura of complete contentment. All desire and anger are stripped from your body, leaving you completely at peace with your place in the universe.

Those who spend time in Nirvana, however, claim that the whiteness is not perfectly uniform, and that they can see shapes within it. After a significant time, individuals believe that they can make out entire cities, floating in the endless expanse. Eventually, they themselves begin to merge into the whiteness, until they are one with Nirvana. Even if they leave before this happens, so much of Nirvana has infused into their bones that they are incapable of aggression or violence.

When it was first discovered, Nirvana was proposed as a humane alternative to the wizarding prison of Azkaban, as it removed the threat of further violence completely. However, a combination of a desire for punishment and the question mark of what exactly happens when they merge with Nirvana meant that Azkaban was retained.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Nirvana imbues the region with peace, forbidding any being from taking combat actions in the region.

Pandæmonium: The Plane of Chaos

As the name suggests, Pandæmonium is a realm of pure unadulterated chaos, a whirling soup of matter, energy and magic.

A calm ocean sits metres away from a typhoon, which warps into a lake freezing in a bed of lava. Fragments of stable landscapes drift through the chaotic world, being destroyed and reformed by the whirling chaos that infuses this dimension. Even gravity is not a constant, sometimes normal, sometimes twice the usual strength, sometimes even negative.

Pandæmonium, however, will respond to an individual imposing their will on it. A simple individual may be able to impose normalcy on a region just large enough to prevent their atoms from shredding as the laws of physics morph. A particularly strong-willed individual, however, can impose order amongst the chaos – potentially for many dozens of metres, creating a safe haven for themselves. As soon as their will is broken, however, Pandæmonium will reclaim the land into its everlasting chaos.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Pandæmonium forces all beings in the region to pass a SPR(endurance) Resist check (DV 10), or be True Shapeshift-ed into a random animal for 1 minute.

Scholomancia: The Plane of Knowledge

Scholomancia is probably the smallest of the main Higher Planes, consisting as it does of a single reading room about 15 metres by 15 metres, lined with bookshelves stocked with ancient tomes. Comfortable leather furniture dots the rest of the room, which has a single inhabitant; the Librarian.

It is rumoured that, despite its small size, the bookshelves in Scholomancia contain every book ever written (and some that weren't), and that by providing new information to the Librarian, he will lead you to the knowledge you desire.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Scholomancia grants all beings in the region a temporary +4 bonus to the Arcane, History and Research proficiencies.

Tartarus: The Plane of Torture

The home of beings that truly enjoy causing pain on other living beings, Tartarus is perhaps the most unpleasant plane for a mortal to visit.

Tartarus appears as a neverending maze, with corridors dripping with blood and skeletons of previous victims. The demonic residents of Tartarus move freely through the walls, hunting their prey. If they catch them, they torture their victims for as long as possible. Advancement through their terrifying society is achieved by inventive new torture methods, particularly excruciating torture, or for keeping a victim alive longer than expected.

If you find yourself in Tartarus, the general advice is to leave as quickly as possible.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Tartarus Causes all beings to suffer as if the Incomprehensible Torture spell had been cast on them with 2PP.

Valhalla: The Plane of Bravery

Viking mythology tells that at the heart of Asgard, lies the great Mead Hall of Heroes; Valhalla. It is from this myth that the Plane of Bravery gets its name. Societies in Valhalla hold bravery and conquest up as the mightiest virtue, and fear to be the greatest weakness. At the heart of Valhalla, lies a stone henge – a series of portals to other plains. As a rite of passage to be considered an adult, every individual must pass through a random portal, and bring back some plunder. The greater the plunder, the more respected in society that individual is.

As a result of this somewhat primitive plunder-centric economy, the civilisations of Valhalla are not technologically advanced, and mostly resemble the Middle Ages of the Mortal World, albeit studded with advanced technology and magics that have been stolen from other planes.

Most of the great adventures in the multiverse begin their story in Valhalla.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Valhalla grants a temporary +5 bonus to Willpower and Endurance proficiencies.

Vulcan: The Plane of Fire

Visually, Vulcan most resembles typical depictions of the Christian Hell, with enormous pools of lava, gouts of fire twenty feet high, and patrolled by demons with pools of flame for eyes. However, this domain is simply the Plane associated with Elemental Fire, not with righteous torture of the evil.

Outside of the volcano-top castles and their pools of lava, the land is covered in a fertile ash, and populated by ruby-red trees that can only distribute their seeds when the tree is consumed by fire. Diverse species of dragon, from tiny lizard-like creatures to formidable goliaths patrol the skys. The fire of this realm serves not simply to destroy, but to cleanse and refresh and as such, though Vulcan is quite alien to us mortals, it has been home to several thriving and prosperous civilisations.

At the core of every summoned Avatar of Flame, lies a single ember drawn across the multiverse from Vulcan.

Planemeld Effect: when melded with the mortal plane, Vulcan ignites everything in the region, doing 3d12 fire damage per turn.

5: Roll Statistics

In this chapter I provide a statistical breakdown of the likelihood of certain rolls. This is only for the über keen GM who wants to take a peek behind the metaphorical curtain.

Analytic Probability

The success of an action is determined by rolling a dice pool of N dice (accumulated from Attributes, Abilities, Affinities and various bonuses). Each of these dice is then compared to a target number, the DV. Every dice which exceeds the DV counts as a success, whilst every dice within the 'catastrophe range' subtracts from the number of successes.

The total number of successes is therefore determined by the number of dice which exceed the DV and those which fall into the catastrophe range. The rules ensure that the DV and the catastrophe range can never overlap, so we may always assume these to be mutually independent possibilities.

Since the events of 'rolling a success' and 'rolling a catastrophe' are mutually exclusive, success-or-failure events, we may model them with a Binomial distribution. Hence, the probability of rolling n successes from N dice, with a probability p of success is:

$$P(n|N, p) = B(n_s, N, p) = {}^N C_n p^n (1-p)^{N-n}$$

Where ${}^n C_r$ is the usual n -choose- r function:

$${}^n C_r = \frac{n!}{r!(n-r)!}$$

In order to score n_s total successes, we must therefore succeed in rolling $n_s + f$ dice which exceed the DV, and f dice which meet the catastrophe condition.

The probability of rolling a success is determined by the DV and the maximum possible value of the dice, D , assuming a normal numbering between 1 and D . Hence:

$$p(\text{roll} \geq \text{DV} | D\text{-sided dice}) = \frac{D+1-\text{DV}}{D}$$

Hence, the probability of rolling $n_s + f$ dice from our original pool is:

The probability of rolling f catastrophes depends on p_c , the catastrophe probability and N_c , the remaining dice left to roll that many catastrophes. N_c must simply be the number of dice not already determined to be successes:

$$N_c = N - n_s - f$$

The catastrophe probability is slightly more subtle, a first glance would indicate that it would take the form:

$$p_c \neq \frac{D+1-X}{D}$$

Where X is the maximum end of the catastrophe range (usually equal to 1). However, we must take into account that we already know that the dice in the 'catastrophe pool' cannot exceed the DV, else they would already have been counted. Hence:

$$p_c = \frac{X}{\text{DV}-1}$$

Therefore, the probability of rolling f catastrophes, given an initial pool of N dice, of which $n_s + f$ have already been used is:

$$p\left(f \text{ catastrophes} | N, n_s + f, \frac{X}{\text{DV}-1}\right) = B(f, N - n_s - f, p_c)$$

Therefore, the combined probability of doing both things simultaneously is:

This final function, $\Theta(x)$ is the Heaviside step function, it evaluates to zero whenever the argument is less than 0, and ensures that you are never relying on more dice than you actually have. If using a statistics package which evaluates the Binomial function directly, it should include this constraint automatically.

The total probability of getting n_s successes is therefore the sum over all possible combinations of $n_s + f$, giving:

$$p(n_s | N, D, \text{DV}, X) = \sum_{f=0}^{N-n_s} B(n_s + f, N, p_s) \times B(f, N - n_s - f, p_c)$$

The probability of a benign failure is therefore:

$$p(\text{fail}) = p(0 | N, D, \text{DV}, X)$$

Whilst the probability of a Catastrophe is found by summing over all negative values of n_s :

$$p(\text{catastrophe}) = \sum_{n_s=-N}^{-1} p(n_s | N, D, \text{DV}, X)$$
